

APPENDIX C

KANSAS APPELLATE COURTS

CITATION AND STYLE GUIDE

REVISED 2021

Introduction

The Citation and Style Guide serves as a general resource for grammar, citation, and formatting rules used in Kansas appellate opinions. This Guide will apply in most situations; however, there may be circumstances where the Reporter’s Office will suggest changes that do not strictly follow these rules (for example, determining the correct version of a statute). Our office strives for consistency, but we must evaluate each opinion individually and determine what is best suited in the context of an opinion as a whole. Our intention is that this Guide will make the reviewing process as quick and efficient as possible by answering the basic and most common stylistic questions encountered in opinions.

As technology progresses and resources are updated, our rules may change over time. Some of the rules contained in this Guide are different from the past and may continue to change in the future. These changes are intended to make the reviewing process more streamlined so we can focus on making only the necessary edits to ensure accurate and concise opinions.

Many rules stem from the Fourth Edition of Bryan Garner’s Redbook or the Twentieth Edition of the Bluebook. We have included references to the rules from these texts in some areas for your guidance. However, some rules in those sources are different from those in this Guide, in which case the Guide’s rules govern.

STATUTES

1. Statute's applicability

- The date the crime was committed or the cause of action accrued controls which version of a statute is applicable. However, an opinion may discuss more than one version; for example, to illustrate changing legislative intent or to analyze former criminal statutes in illegal sentence appeals.
- When statutes are contained in both the bound volume and supplement, in some situations it may be sufficient to cite to the bound volume if the amendments are not substantive or pertinent to the issues in the case. For example, when referring to a 1507 motion, stating "Johnson filed a motion under K.S.A. 60-1507" is acceptable. However, when citing statutes that are not in the bound volume, please include a supplement year so the reader can find it. In particular, current criminal statutes are only found in supplements because the criminal code was revised and renumbered in 2011.

2. Citation to a bound volume

- If a bound volume contains the applicable version, then cite to the bound volume.

- If the applicable version of the statute is in a superseded bound volume, include the name of the revisor of statutes in parentheses at the end of the citation. If the revisor of the superseded volume is the same as the revisor of a current bound volume, include the year in parentheses with the revisor's name.
 - K.S.A. 21-3721 (Weeks).

 - K.S.A. 60-1507 (Furse 1994).

3. Citation to a supplement

- In general, when citing to a supplement, cite to the current supplement if the statute is substantively the same with regard to the relevant statutory language in both the earlier, applicable supplement and the current supplement.

Exception: When referencing the statute a defendant was charged under, it is preferable to use the supplement in effect at the date of the crime rather than the most current supplement. If a statute is cited in any sentence of the opinion in reference to a particular past trial event, then the relevant supplement in effect at the time of trial should be used, but only in that particular sentence. It is acceptable to go back and forth between supplement years (even in the same paragraph) when following the rule above and this exception, and it is not necessary to be consistent with the supplement year throughout the entire opinion.

- Note: Do not change the version of the statute cited when quoting or discussing a previously decided case.

- Cite to the current supplement when citing an entire statutory act only if the entire act is contained within the supplement.
 - Revised Kansas Sentencing Guidelines Act (KSGA), K.S.A. 2020 Supp. 21-6801 et seq.
 - Revised Kansas Code for Care of Children, K.S.A. 2020 Supp. 38-2201 et seq.
 - Kansas Judicial Review Act, K.S.A. 77-601 et seq.
- It is not necessary to keep the supplement years the same throughout the entire opinion (see, e.g., the exception above).

4. Citation to amended statute

- When citing to a statute that has recently been amended but is not yet published in a supplement, cite as:
 - Full cite: K.S.A. 22-3504(d), as amended by L. 2019, ch. 59, § 15.
 - Short cite: K.S.A. 22-3504(d) (amended 2019)

ORDER OF CITATIONS

When listing sources in a string citation, arrange sources after the same signal (or no signal) according to the following general principles.

- Cite the most authoritative sources before less authoritative or merely persuasive sources.
- Arrange cases decided by the same court in reverse chronological order.
 - Note: Treat the federal courts of appeals as one court for purposes of this rule.
 - ◆ Exception: All unpublished cases go after published cases, even if more recent.
- Arrange cases from the same jurisdiction in order of highest court to lowest court.
- Arrange out-of-state cases alphabetically by state.
- Cite federal statutes and cases before out-of-state statutes and cases.

The following example provides the order in which the most commonly cited sources would appear in a Kansas decision:

- United States Constitution; Kansas Constitution; Kansas statute; United States Supreme Court case; Kansas Supreme Court case; Kansas Court of Appeals case;

Kansas Supreme Court Rule; Kansas administrative regulation; federal Court of Appeals case; out-of-state case; secondary source.

- Note: Use semicolons between sources in a string citation.

Refer to Redbook Rule 9.7 and Bluebook Rule 1.4 for further guidance on how to order sources in a string citation.

CITATION OF OTHER SOURCES

NOTES

- Do not cite to syllabus paragraphs from federal or out-of-state courts.
- When citing United States Supreme Court cases, use the official title as indicated at the top of the pages in the U.S. reports or S. Ct. reports (whichever is available), except always spell out United States even when U.S. appears in the title of any federal case.
- When citing more than one section of a constitution, statute, treatise, etc., use two section symbols and a comma if a series of nonconsecutive sections are cited or a hyphen if consecutive sections are cited. Never use more than two section symbols, even if citing to more than two sections.
